Centre for Dental Education and Research, AIIMS, New Delhi

Optimizing antibiotic prescriptions in treatment of oro-dental infections

The Centre for Dental Education and Research in collaboration with WHO India organised brainstorming meeting on finding ways for optimizing use of antibiotics in Oro-dental infections at AIIMS, New Delhi. The meeting was organised to network with various stakeholders as a technical group. Representative from various specialities of Dentistry, Indian Dental association and Indian society for dental research participated in this meeting with experts from various Govt departments and institutions of national importance for this day long deliberation. (list enclosed). The meeting was an effort to conduct situation analysis about prescriptions by Dental Professionals in the country as well as brainstorm on future guidance document on optimizing the antimicrobial prescriptions for oro-dental infections. (copy of program enclosed)

Dr V. K. Paul, Member (Health), NITI Aayog, Govt of India stressed that health is a major determinant of human development and progress of the nation. The impact of anti-microbial resistance of mankind is likely to influences Nation's economy, growth and productivity in future. Dr Polin Chan, Team Lead for Communicable Diseases at WHO India office informed impact of AMR on human, animal and environment health. Dr M. Srinivas, Director, AIIMS, New Delhi , Dr Anuj Sharma, Technical Officer, WHO India and Prof. Ritu Duggal, Chief of CDER, AIIMS committed to continue to serve for betterment of oral health for fellow countrymen and take the AMR commitment by AIIMS to next level on behalf of the group.

All Dental specialists shared their views and come to a plan to overcome this serious issue. At the end of the meeting a situation analysis questionnaire was finalized by the experts and the discussion on format of future guidance document was started. There is a need to intersectoral and inter-ministerial coordination to address anti-microbial resistance.,

The participants finalized the e-questionnaire for the survey of oral health professionals to find out the current practices of antibiotic prescription selection and pattern. The group also discussed various modalities for presenting the guidance document and resolved upon using tabular format.

20th Post Graduate Convention of ISPPD, Dubai 22nd to 24th February 2024

I'm sure you must be doing great both in your personal as well as professional spheres of life. You will agree with me that the postgraduation period is considered as the best in any student's life wherein she/ he is mature enough to learn and understand the lessons of life along with evidence-based specialty's knowledge and skills, and we as members/ college faculty have an obligation to make their PG period a memorable one. I'm pleased to inform you that 20th Postgraduate Convention of ISPPD has been decided to be held at DUBAI from 22nd-24th February 2024. This will be the first ever Convention to be held out of India, in 45 year's history of ISPPD. The main objective of holding it outside is to provide our members and PGs a 'socio-academic' atmosphere with a pleasant memories, beyond boundary. On behalf of Head Office of ISPPD, I cordially invite you and your PGs to attend the convention. please block the dates, get your Passport ready and start searching best flights for your travel. We are currently in talks with many Events Management companies to provide you best packages for registration with and without accommodation along with sightseeing. Soon, you will get more information about Convention details and offers.
